Over the years Acadia National Park has drawn my attention more and more often.

I first visited there in 1974, then again in the early 80's. It receded into my past for a long while, but that changed in 2005 when I began to feel the pull of the park once again. It has become an addiction for me, a place of wonder, of wanderings, of camera play.

Join me in viewing some images from my visit there in September of 2007.
