The Sea Forts

To Anna & Dylan.

The Maunsell Sea Forts, were used to defend London in World War Two. They're in the Thames Estuary off the north Kent coast. During the 1950's the forts became unmanned and the Ministry Of Defence left them to the elements. They were taken over by pirate radio stations in 1964 until 1967 when the pirates left and the sea gulls again took over. In 2004 Red Sands was boarded for the first time in years and is now being restored.

This book presents the pictures I taken of the the forts over the last 20 years.
